

Eisenhower's Warning

Presidents Eisenhower, Ford, Reagan, and Clinton all quoted this one individual, so did Hillary Clinton in her presidential debate with Donald Trump. The only problem is they misattributed the quote. They've claimed it came from Alexis de Tocqueville. People have been attributing this quote to de Tocqueville since the year 1886 and to others as far back as 1835. The quote says,

“I sought for the greatness and genius of America in her commodious harbors and her ample rivers, and it was not there. In her fertile fields and boundless forests, and it was not there. In her rich mines and vast world commerce and it was not there. In her Democratic Congress and her matchless Constitution and it was not there. Not until I went into the churches of America and heard the pulpits aflame with righteousness, did I understand the secret of her genius and power. America is great because she is good. And if America ever ceases to be good, she will cease to be great.” –Unknown

This quote is referenced often because it speaks to the heart of the nation and the roots from which it draws its strength. For this reason, those roots are under attack.

In this briefing we will discuss the following:

- » A Sickly Nation
- » Eisenhower's Warning
- » America's Rotting Root – And How to Heal It

YOUR MISSION: Understand the Economic War of the Heart that has wounded our nation and learn what must be done to win this war and save our nation from destruction.

 ATTENTION: America is ill with a disease rooted in the hearts of her people and only the people can cure it.

1. A Sickly Nation

“America is sick. Or maybe I should say ill. That’s obvious to anyone paying attention. The question is why? After careful thought, I’m pretty sure the answer is money. Luke 16:11. Jesus said, “Therefore if you can’t be faithful with your unrighteous mammon or money. Who’s ever going to trust you with true riches?” ... the founders of this nation thought that liberty was worth sacrificing our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor. It was not all about the money.” –Kevin Freeman

America became great because it chose, first and foremost, to be good. Each decade of American history brought its own challenges, but the American people overcame those challenges and built a brighter future for all people every time.

To be good and righteous, one must first see themselves for who they are. The beast within must be revealed so that it can be tamed. The American Spirit was driven by a ferocious hunger for liberty and righteousness and succeeded on most fronts to cleanse itself of its own evils.

Now, America faces a new threat, an evil that has grown deep within the nation’s heart.

“Post World War II, something happened. Eisenhower warned us of a military-industrial complex where people would make money from war, rather than reluctantly using war to produce liberty. First, he warned of a scientific technological elite, funded with taxpayer money, that would look down from on high and tell the little people how they should live. You know, it’s all about the science. Then he warned of a military-industrial complex that would work hand in glove with the scientific-technological elite. They would be the enforcement mechanism. Again, with taxpayer money. They would have an insatiable appetite for more and more money.” –Kevin Freeman

The guiding light that inspired generations of Americans was the pursuit of God and a nation that resembled the Liberty of Heaven.

Since the end of World War II, the focus of the nation’s elite has shifted, and money has become their prize.

⚠ Attention: America has become ill as the nation’s elites have turned to wealth instead of righteousness.

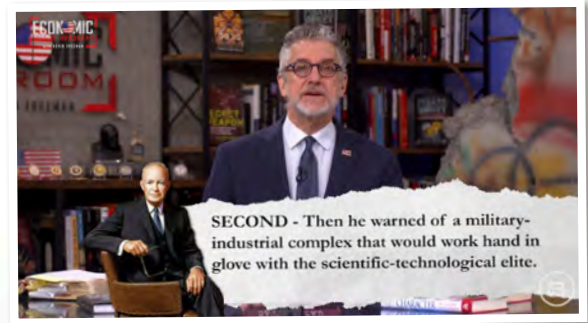

2. Eisenhower’s Warning

President Eisenhower saw something unusual and unprecedented forming before his eyes. Something un-American. And he sought to warn the American people of the threat such a change could pose on the heart of the nation.

“Today, the solitary inventor tinkering in his shop has been overshadowed by a task force of scientists and laboratories and testing fields. In the same fashion, the Free University, historically the fountainhead of free ideas and scientific discovery, has experienced a revolution in the conduct of research. Partly because of the huge costs involved, a government contract becomes virtually a substitute for intellectual curiosity. For every blackboard, there are now hundreds of new electronic computers. The prospect of domination of the nation's scholars by federal employment, project allocations, and the power of money is ever present and is gravely to be regarded. Yet in holding scientific research and discovery and respect as we should, we must also be alert to the equal and opposite danger that public policy could itself become the captive of a scientific-technological elite." –President Eisenhower

This scientific-technological elite is reminiscent of the scientific institutions in the British Empire where ordinary citizens could not tinker to invent new technologies, but innovation was instead controlled by the elite.

The American system, where individuals were encouraged to innovate on their own, allowed America to develop new technologies much faster than their competitors, including military technology that redefined warfare and turned the tide of World War II.

The greater threat is not the slowing of innovation, but the funding of it. When the development of new technologies is institutionalized, those organizations require funding. This is where the money trail begins.

The funding of American technological advances shifted from personal risk to corporate and government risk. This quickly became the Military Industrial Complex. Sadly, this system does not differ much from the scientific guild of the British Empire where most technology was funded by the King or the East India Trading Company.

The only way for technology to continue to advance was for the King and the East India Trading Company to fund it, which only happened if the technology would provide profit, with both the King and the Company profiting primarily from war.

The American system was shifting from its roots and President Eisenhower knew something was wrong.

“Our military organization today bears little relation to that known by any of my predecessors in peacetime, or indeed by the fighting men of World War II or Korea. Until the latest of our war conflicts, the United States had no armaments industry. American makers of plowshares could, with time and as required, make swords as well.

But now we can no longer risk emergency improvisation of national defense. We've been compelled to create a permanent armaments industry of vast proportions. Added to this, 3.5 million men and women are directly engaged in the defense establishment we annually spend on military security, more than the net income of all United States corporations. The conjunction of an immense military establishment and a large arms industry is new in the American experience. The total influence economic, political, even spiritual, is felt in every city, every statehouse, every office of the federal government. We recognize the imperative need for this development, yet we must not fail to comprehend its grave implications. Our toil, resources, and livelihood are all involved. So is the very structure of our society.

In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist. We must never let the weight of this combination endanger our liberties or democratic processes. We should take nothing for granted. Only an alert and knowledgeable citizenry can compel the proper meshing of the huge industrial and military machinery of our defense with our powerful, peaceful methods and goals, so that security and liberty may prosper together.” –President Eisenhower

America had stepped out of its isolationist shell and now faced the challenges of the world stage. During the war, the American people banded together and worked hard to overcome the Axis powers. Faith was an essential part of everyday life.

After the war, America funded the reconstruction of the war-torn nations with the intent to rebuild decimated communities and establish liberty-loving democracies across Europe.

At this point in history, America was a nation in love with liberty and her people and elites were willing to sacrifice their lives, fortunes, and sacred honor not just in defense of the nation, but in the name of liberty for other peoples and other nations.

This was American greatness, rooted in goodness, as the American people prioritized righteousness and liberty above themselves.

However, amid such goodness, a disastrous storm of evil was brewing.

Attention: The American Military Industrial Complex has become exactly what President Eisenhower predicted, a money-loving cancer to the American people.

3. America's Rotting Root – And How To Heal It

President Eisenhower's prediction was correct, but how did such an evil grow in a nation that was so good?

The answer is sadly quite simple. The nation turned its back on what made it good and began to worship a false god, money.

“Deuteronomy chapter 28 describes nations that are under a blessing and nations that are under a curse. The blessing, that's when you follow after God, doing the things that are in the Ten Commandments and being obedient to God. Well, what you get when you're a nation under blessing is you're able to lend to many nations, but borrow from none... You have peace. You don't have plagues. There's holiness in the land. There's general and widespread prosperity. It's not just for the elite, but everybody prospers and succeeds in a nation under blessing... a nation under curse suffers continual war, plagues, they're plundered from without. There's debt, massive debt, and you can't repay it. There's misery.” –Kevin Freeman

American history points to the success of a nation under blessing. All the inhabitants of the nation benefit from prosperity as each generation builds a better nation for their children to grow up in.

However, the nation shifted from its dependence on God and its love for righteousness and liberty.

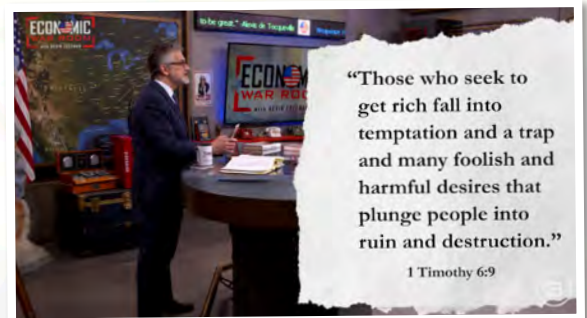

Having forsaken the God of their forefathers, and turned to their own idols, the nation left blessing and entered cursed territory.

The curse of the nation is evidenced by the rapid decline of the middle class and the increase in poverty for the lower class. Kevin continues to explain the evidence scripture professes of a cursed nation: "The alien who lives among you will rise higher and higher, while the citizens fall lower and lower, and other nations invade you."

The flood of illegal immigrants who are receiving more governmental aid than the wounded veterans who served in her military stands as evidence of this scripture. Furthermore, many of these illegal immigrants are military-aged men from nations that are declared enemies of America and our way of life. Other nations are already invading.

The evidence is overwhelming. America is a nation living in curses instead of blessings because the nation has turned its back on God and has worshiped idols.

"The Bible also warned us in 1 Timothy 6:9, which says 'those who seek to get rich fall into temptation and a trap, and many foolish and harmful desires that plunge people into ruin and destruction.' That's what's been happening in America. You know, our founders, they didn't seek to get rich. They knew they would probably have their wealth stripped from them, but they wanted to ensure liberty for future generations. They didn't seek to get rich. They didn't fall into a trap. But, my friends, this is the sin of America. We've sought to get rich, and we've fallen into that trap. You know, the next verse in Timothy warns us that the love of money is the root of all sorts of evil." –Kevin Freeman

This is how the roots that once made America great became sickly. Instead of loving God, righteousness, and liberty more than our own lives, we have loved ourselves and our wealth.

This issue is not just one for the elites, but the majority of the American people. Money has become an idol for most Americans as they compare their material wealth to others and envy the belongings or lifestyle of those who have 'more.'

The typical American is not satisfied with life or trusting God for provision, but instead either seeks great wealth or fears losing what they already have.

Fear is faith in the wrong father.

God is a generous father who gives good gifts to His children. If we are afraid that we will not have enough, we are choosing to believe the lies of the enemy (the father of lies) instead of the loving words of our Heavenly Father.

This fear is so rampant in American society that many are convinced by the Marxist ideology of socialism in which the government plays God and functions as the provider for the people.

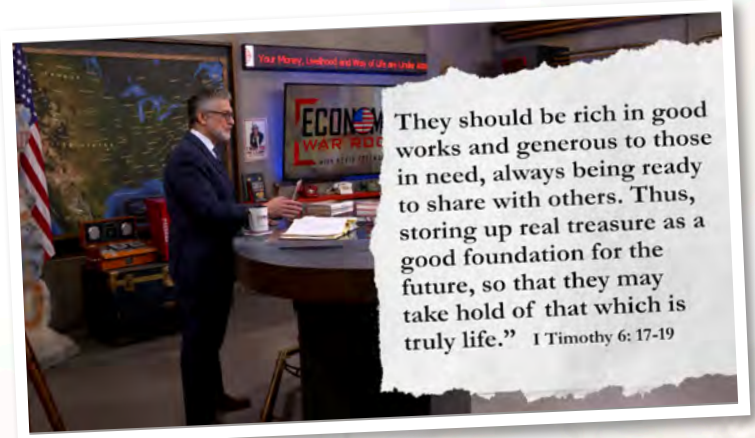

“This is the problem that we’re facing when we no longer focus on opportunity and creating opportunity, but we lie to the people and offer them ‘equity’ instead of equal opportunity. We offer them equality of outcome. Well, why would we do that? So that we can control them. It doesn’t get the best and the brightest. What it does is say, ‘Hey, you stupid people, you sit down, shut up, and we’ll give you your allowance. We, the smart people, the elite, we’ll run everything. We know what we’re doing. And if you disagree with us, you’re cut off, you’re silenced, you’re cast out. But if you go along, you’ll get your payment.’” –Kevin Freeman

This is the slavery that the Enemy is able to trick us into, using fear and idol worship.

Even the churches of America have turned away from God and gone to money. Many churches are unwilling to speak up for righteousness because they fear they will lose their tax-exempt status. Again, fear is faith in the wrong father.

The solution to this problem is just as simple as how the problem came into being.

“1 Timothy 6 is a warning to America, but it also teaches how to get out of the trap... ‘Put your hope in God, who richly provides us with everything for our enjoyment. Tell them to use their money to do good. They should be rich in good works and generous to those in need, always being ready to share with others, thus storing up real treasure as a good foundation for the future, so that they may take hold of that which is truly life.’ ... You be generous, and you be good, and you always be ready to share with others and you store up real treasure. Don’t worry about the money as much as you worry about Liberty and God’s plan and God’s purposes.” –Kevin Freeman

America must forsake the idols it has been worshiping and turn back to God. We must love righteousness and liberty more than we love ourselves and our wealth. We must be generous with what God has given us, and we must be willing to lose everything, our lives, our wealth, and our sacred honor, in the fight for righteousness and liberty.

This is a 1776 moment, where the heart of the American people will be tested. Will we side with God and seek righteousness and liberty, or will we side with the enemy and seek earthly wealth? Will we heed President Eisenhower’s warning? The choice is up to you.
