

Net-Zero's Starvation Policy

Climate change and the solutions presented by the globalist elites are a hot topic. Nations around the world are forced to submit to new guidelines and policies enforcing the climate change agenda. Some of these policies have already been implemented, while others are only just beginning to be considered.

These policies directly impact the production of energy, especially oil and gas, increasing the price for both. What will these price changes imply for the costs of other goods, especially food?

In this briefing we will discuss the following:

- » The Cost of Net-Zero
- » Family Focus – Increased Expenses
- » Global Examples
- » Resisting Net-Zero

YOUR MISSION: Learn about the dramatic impact net-zero policies will have on farming and food prices for American families.

 ATTENTION: Net-zero policies will cripple the American middle class and many Americans will be unable to afford their current diets.

Ep. 8-284 (OSINT) Open-Sourced Intelligence Report. This briefing includes a conversation between Kevin Freeman and Rea Hederman Jr. Rea is a friend of the Economic War Room® and a patriot.

Rea S. Hederman Jr. is executive director of the Economic Research Center and vice president of policy at The Buckeye Institute. In this role, Hederman oversees Buckeye's research and policy output.

A nationally recognized expert in healthcare policy and tax policy, Hederman has published numerous reports and papers looking at returning healthcare power to the states, the impact of policy changes on a state's economy, labor markets, and how to reform tax systems to spur economic growth.

Prior to joining Buckeye, Hederman was director, and a founding member of the Center for Data Analysis (CDA) at the Heritage Foundation, where he served as the organization's top "number cruncher." Under Hederman's leadership, the CDA provided state-of-the-art economic modeling, database products, and original studies.

1. The Cost of Net-Zero

Climate change is a hot debate around the world, as globalist elites push their net-zero agendas on the people of formerly sovereign nations.

The claim is that humanity must band together to change course before we destroy this great green planet and wipe ourselves out with it. The science supporting this claim is shaky at best. What is not up for dispute are the negative effects of the net-zero policies the leftists are pushing.

“The policies that have come down from the Biden administration ... and we realize they are going to impact a lot of our fellow Ohioans and fellow Americans in places you don't expect. And that's at the family dinner table... His first day of office, President Biden rejoined the Paris Climate Accords, which forced his administration to start proposing a swath of new regulations that would hammer the agricultural sector by making every aspect of farming more expensive. And that's because farmers rely on cheap, affordable energy natural gas, everything from powering their tractors to making fertilizer. And when you make all farm costs more expensive, well, that means Americans are going to be paying more for food at their table.” –Rea Hederman Jr.

Food prices have soared since the beginning of the Biden administration as war, inflation, and other geopolitical effects increase the cost for farmers and food suppliers.

On top of these issues, the climate cult policies intend to increase the costs for farmers. Naturally, as the cost of operation increases, farmers will be forced to raise their prices to stay in business.

“The average farm, 750 acres of corn, will be paying over a third more in operating cost each year because they’re being forced to abide by these policies. That’s $65,000 to farms. And the cost of increased costs come from the fact that fertilizer is going to be costing about 29% more because a lot of that will be banned from the fact that natural gas can no longer be used to produce fertilizer. We know, for example, that, farmers have to use propane, to dry out grain crops so they can get to the table... unfortunately, a lot of the methods that modern farmers use to produce the crops that we enjoy are going to be either more expensive, if not outright banned under a lot of these regulations that are going to happen under ESG and net zero policies.” –Rea Hederman Jr.

With food prices going up, along with gas prices, American families will face a painful decrease in purchasing power. Some foods will increase in cost. Others may simply be too costly for farmers to provide. This could lead to a massive shift in the food options available to American families.

As costs rise, however, some families may even struggle to afford food at all.

“I’ve seen the studies, free market capitalism brought down poverty to the lowest level it’s ever been in history. Well, it used energy to accomplish that. And essentially these ESG policies are eliminating energy. You can’t make fertilizer out of solar cells... You have a chart. It says the operating costs, and you mentioned it. $192,000 is the current cost for the average farm versus $257,000 under Net Zero. That could put some farms out of business.” –Kevin Freeman

Global poverty levels have declined dramatically since the invention of Capitalism and the introduction of industrial power. The energy produced by coal and oil products has lifted people around the world out of poverty.

The climate cult intends to shut down these forms of reliable and affordable power which would destroy the global energy industry.

Without energy, there is no life. Energy cannot be created. It is simply transferred through objects and forms. Fertilizer is chemical energy that plants use to grow. If the costs of energy increase, the cost of food increases. If the cost of food increases, the cost-of-living increases.

As the cost of basic needs increases, people are unable to sustain their current way of living. The middle class shrinks, and those living in poverty will fall down Maslow's hierarchy of needs, potentially all the way to basic survival.

Attention: The Biden administration and the climate cult are pushing dangerous policies that would harm American farming and increase the cost of food for all Americans.

2. Family Focus – Increased Expenses

Increased costs for farmers will affect food prices for Americans. But how much?

“We looked at the staples of how much the American family spends, and we found that it’s going to cost about $1,300 annually, or 15% more each year. And Kevin, families have been shocked at how much grocery prices have gone up in just the last couple of years. You’re sitting there saying, “milk has gone up, eggs have gone up.” The price that we find in this report is on top of the inflation that’s going up. And because we know that certain farming practices are more under the gun. Farm prices are going to go up differently for beef for example, which will almost double per pound. The price of butter is going to go up by about 25% because we know that those farming practices are going to be more adversely affected under the net zero regulations.” –Rea Hederman Jr.

For some families, $1,300 is an overwhelming burden. This will mean less for college and retirement savings.

For other families, this increase in expense could mean downsizing, going into debt, or having to depend on food stamps to make ends meet.

This is a direct attack on the financial liberty of many Americans who would become dependent upon the government to have enough food on the table.

Item	Percent Increase
American Cheese	78%
Bananas	59%
Beef	70%
Bread	7%
Butter	24%
Chicken	39%
Coffee	13%
Dozen Eggs	36%
Flour	35%
Milk	9%
Oranges	3%
Pork	18%

“It’s an incredibly thorough report. You’ve got a list of price increases of US groceries, American cheese up 78%. Sugar up 43%. Pork up 28%. Spaghetti 13%. Chicken 39%. Bread 7%. Butter 24%. I mean, this kind of price increase on top of what we’ve already had to go through from the excessive inflation that’s been created, that’s devastating to an American family.” –Kevin Freeman

These price increases for staple foods in the American diet, necessary for a well-rounded diet, will crush American families who are already struggling financially.

Inflation has already crippled the American middle class. These policies would be devastating to the majority of Americans, creating a future of hard choices.

As Rea explains, “Maybe they can’t take a vacation, maybe they can’t save more for retirement. Maybe their kids have to go another year without new clothes. These are the types of choices that are being faced every day by American consumers.”

Attention: Net-Zero policies will directly harm American families, crippling the middle class and impoverishing the lower class, by increasing the cost of basic needs.

3. Global Examples

These impacts of net-zero policies are not simply conjecture, there are real-world examples.

“A few years ago, Sri Lanka said we’re going to abide by these net zero policies. And they outlawed nitrogen fertilizer. Well, where does nitrogen fertilizer come from? In most manufacturing countries it comes from natural gas. The hydrogen from natural gas is used to produce the fertilizer. So, when Sri Lanka got rid of nitrogen fertilizer, the crop yields plummeted. As a consequence, we have seen Sri Lankan food prices double. We’ve seen shortages of food in Sri Lanka, and we’ve seen a number of people, families in Sri Lanka, simply go hungry because there’s not enough food. Farmers use fertilizer to increase crop yield, and more abundant food means people aren’t going hungry. And so, when you’re outlawing efficient farming practices... we’ve seen the consequences, there’s less food available.” –Rea Hederman Jr.

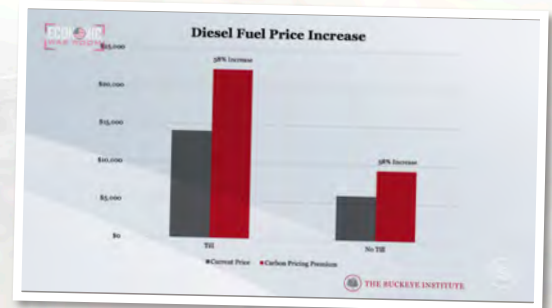

The logic is simple, and Sri Lanka should serve as a warning to all nations that would consider such foolish net-zero policies.

Sadly, it’s not just Sri Lanka. Many European nations have enacted net-zero policies and are facing the consequences.

Across Europe, Rea explains, “They’ve closed about 70% of nitrogen fertilizer factories, and as a consequence, farming costs have gone up about 50% and food prices have gone up 42%.”

“And you’ve got diesel price increases, carbon price increases. All these things impact farmers. But the really dumb part about this, and I use that word not lightly, it absolutely fits here, is that we have been reducing our carbon emissions in the United States. Yet now, we’re going to starve the farmers and starve the people from the feedstocks that they need. And we’re going to be removing food from the supply even though we’re already meeting the climate initiative guidelines.” –Kevin Freeman

Europe has, on top of this nonsense, shut down many of its nuclear power plants. This has created the energy crisis they face today as they refuse to use Nuclear or Oil/Coal power plants and end up having to import energy from Russia.

With these net-zero policies, European nations have crushed the purchasing power of their citizens.

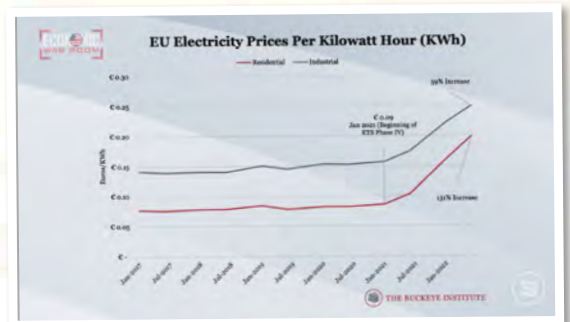

Now, the Biden administration seeks to bring those same policies here to the US. It would be foolish to expect any other outcome than what has already been experienced around the world.

⚠ Attention: All attempts at net-zero policies around the world have had disastrous consequences and have drastically increased the cost of living.

4. Resisting Net-Zero

Instead of participating in the economic suicide that is net-zero policies, the US must instead change course.

In their report, Rea and his team provided seven steps that can be taken to protect Americans from net-zero policies and their devastating consequences.

The first step: withdraw from the Paris Climate Accords. President Trump did this step early in his administration, however President Biden stuck us back in this awful agreement.

The second step: revoke as much of the EPA's net zero funding and tax credits as possible.

“When the Biden administration passed their poorly named Inflation Reduction Act, they knew that this was going to have a big impact on farmers. So, they threw $43 billion of subsidies into the Department of Agriculture to try to entice farmers, to be able to adopt these policies. I think a lot about, Ronald Reagan, that great quote, ‘when government sees something moving, it taxes it, if it doesn’t work, regulate it. And then if you kill it, then subsidize it’ ... We know the end result is higher inflation. Again, higher prices on American families, higher taxes to pay for it. We should get rid of those subsidies. We don’t need to move forward in that direction. Let the market work, save taxpayers money, and have the federal government stop spending.” –Rea Hederman Jr.

The third step: Congress must build a bipartisan anti-ESG coalition to destroy the globalist plan to ruin the American economy.

The fourth step: implement proactive and targeted ESG bans which would strip funding from the Woke movement and put it back into the economy.

The fifth step: pass laws that prevent ideological ESG investment and lending. This prevents future funding of the ESG agenda.

The sixth step: Corporate and shareholder responses to ESG metrics.

“What we’re looking at right now is that there’s a great quote that came out that basically said, ‘cows are the new coal,’ from an ESG fund manager. Right. And so basically saying we’re going to look and evaluate cows and score them has been so poorly as we did coal a few years ago. So, there’s a lot of concern, I think, at the lens that a lot of these companies are looking at where they’re tipping the scale against certain types of farming prices and really endangering what I think is a staple of the American economy and the food that we eat.” –Rea Hederman Jr.

This is a direct attack on American farmers, and the shareholders of the beef industry should be outraged at such a threat to their investments.

The seventh step: promote good, affordable farming practices at the local level.
