

The Four Horseman of the American Apocalypse The Red Horse: Chinese Communist Party (CCP)

The United States faces a form of conflict unlike any in its history. This is not a conventional war fought with tanks, missiles, or invasion fleets. Instead, it is a comprehensive, multi-domain campaign designed to weaken America from within while scrupulously avoiding open military confrontation—at least until the moment is deemed optimal. At the center of this campaign stands the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), an ideological regime relentlessly pursuing global dominance under its authoritarian communist model of governance. Through economic manipulation, political corruption, cultural subversion, technological control, biological warfare, and sophisticated internal infiltration, the CCP has pursued a long-term strategy to hollow out American strength, erode national sovereignty, and position itself to deliver a decisive blow.

Understanding this strategy is no longer confined to intelligence professionals or military strategists. It has become essential knowledge for investors protecting retirement savings, business leaders navigating supply chains, policymakers shaping trade and security policy, and everyday citizens committed to preserving economic stability, personal freedoms, and the American way of life.

In this briefing we will discuss the following:

- » The CCP's Unrestricted Warfare and Global Domination Strategy
- » Biological Warfare, Pandemic Weaponization, and Internal Infiltration
- » Financial, Political, and Institutional Enablers — and the Emerging Counter-Offensive

YOUR MISSION: Arm yourself with the unfiltered truth about the CCP's multi-front war on America—so you can spot the threats, shield your wealth and family, and join the fight to reclaim U.S. sovereignty and strength before it's too late.

WHY YOU SHOULD CARE

- » The CCP's unrestricted warfare erodes U.S. economic strength, manufacturing base, and cultural integrity, directly threatening jobs, innovation, supply-chain security, and the daily freedoms Americans rely on.
- » This strategy infiltrates everyday tools—social media platforms, investment portfolios, consumer products—potentially manipulating public opinion, personal data, elections, and financial decisions in subtle but profound ways.
- » Recognizing these tactics empowers individuals to make smarter investment choices, avoid CCP-linked vulnerabilities in portfolios or supply chains, and protect long-term financial security.
- » Biological and infiltration threats expose communities to engineered health crises and internal sabotage, raising risks to family safety, public health systems, and local economies.
- » Awareness of enablers and active counter-offensives equips citizens to support effective policies, organizations, and divestment efforts, helping rebuild defenses and secure a freer, more prosperous future for generations to come.

Ep. 10-381 (OSINT) Open-Sourced Intelligence Report. This briefing includes a conversation between Kevin Freeman and Frank Gaffney. Frank is a friend of the Economic War Room® and an American Patriot.

Frank Gaffney is the President of the Institute for the American Future. In addition, Mr. Gaffney is the host of "Securing America," a daily program on the Real America's Voice network and podcast; the driving force behind SecuringAmerica.Substack.com; and the author of a daily audio and video commentary, the "Secure Freedom Minute."

Mr. Gaffney is also associated with the various coalitions supported by the Institute. For example, he serves as the Vice Chairman of the Committee on the Present Danger: China (CPDC) and the co-founder of the Sovereignty Coalition (SovCo).

In 1987, Frank Gaffney was tapped by President Ronald Reagan at the age of 34 to become the Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Policy after his four years as the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Nuclear Forces and Arms Control Policy. He went on to found and lead for thirty-seven years the Center for Security Policy to champion the practice of what "the Gipper" called "peace through strength" through a high-impact/low-overhead model Mr. Gaffney dubbed "the Special Forces in the War of Ideas," now being practiced at the Institute for the American Future.

1. The CCP's Unrestricted Warfare and Global Domination Strategy

In the Economic War Room, we've long warned that the greatest threats to American freedom don't always come with tanks rolling across borders or missiles in the sky.

The Chinese Communist Party (CCP) fights differently. It wages unrestricted warfare—a doctrine outlined in the 1999 book Unrestricted Warfare by People's Liberation Army colonels Qiao Liang and Wang Xiangsui.

This approach deploys every instrument of national power short of overt kinetic conflict to defeat an adversary, turning markets into battlefields, supply chains into weapons, social media into cognitive-warfare tools, and capital flows into instruments of coercion.

The CCP's goal is clear: eliminate any obstacle to its global hegemony, with the United States as the primary target.

America represents the ideological opposite of communist rule—individual liberty, free markets, and self-determination—so it must be weakened internally before any decisive move is made.

"They actually write in there about how they could use Osama bin Laden or George Soros as a type of terrorist to take America down. So, they hit the green axis and the blue axis, and then they talk about how they can corrupt politicians, which is the yellow axis, the yellow horseman, the cowards and traitors." —Kevin Freeman

This is not future speculation; it is the reality unfolding around us. The CCP systematically hollows out Western economies through deindustrialization, forces dependence on Chinese manufacturing, steals intellectual property on an industrial scale, and uses platforms like TikTok to shape youth culture and public opinion.

These are deliberate lines of attack designed to erode strength without ever firing a shot.

“The Chinese Communist Party has used virtually anything that can be weaponized to destroy another nation without it knowing — economic warfare, political warfare, cultural warfare, cognitive warfare, and biological warfare.” —Kevin Freeman

This doctrine builds directly on the ideological legacy of Mao Zedong, whose regime showed a ruthless willingness to sacrifice millions in pursuit of control.

Mao’s successors understood communism’s inherent economic weaknesses could never compete openly with free markets. Enter Deng Xiaoping’s famous “hide and bide” strategy: pretend to embrace capitalism, quietly extract Western capital and technology, and build overwhelming strength until dominance is inevitable.

The tragic result? Western pension funds, institutional investors, and corporate partnerships have—often unknowingly—financed the industrial, technological, and military rise of a hostile authoritarian regime.

The significance is stark: by avoiding direct military confrontation, the CCP advances undetected, turning globalization and interdependence into weapons against the West.

Much of American leadership, corporate America, and the public still treat China as a conventional trade partner rather than an ideological adversary executing a patient, coordinated, multi-decade campaign.

⚠ Attention: America is not facing mere competition with China—it is already inside a non-kinetic war designed to make effective resistance impossible before most people even recognize the conflict exists.

2. Biological Warfare, Pandemic Weaponization, and Internal Infiltration

Unrestricted warfare doesn't stop at economics or culture—it extends into the realm of biology, where the CCP has long viewed pathogens as legitimate tools for strategic advantage.

Chinese military doctrine has explicitly considered biological warfare as a means to depopulate adversary nations, clearing the way for future territorial control or colonization.

This isn't fringe theory; it aligns with documented strategic thinking in PLA circles and echoes chilling historical precedents under Mao Zedong, whose policies led to the deaths of up to 100 million Chinese through famine, purges, and forced collectivization like the Great Leap Forward.

A reported secret speech by then-Defense Minister Chi Haotian around 2003 laid bare the mindset: biological means could be used to "clean up" America, making it possible for massive Chinese migration and CCP-led control.

"Deng had given the Chinese People's Liberation Army's illegal biological warfare program express orders to prepare to take down the United States. To depopulate it so that it could be colonized by China." —Frank Gaffney

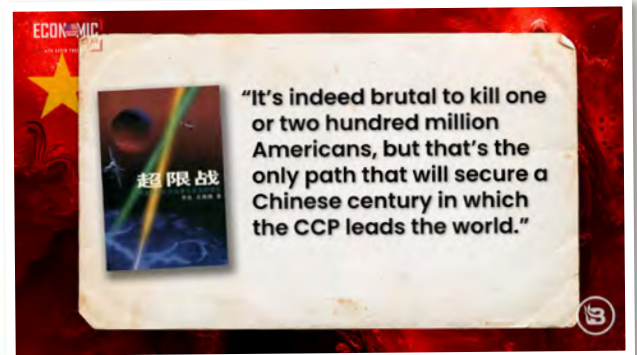

The COVID-19 pandemic brought this doctrine into sharp, real-world focus. Whether the virus emerged from a Wuhan lab by accident or design, once it was loose, the CCP's actions—delayed transparency, restricted early warnings, and controlled information flows—ensured rapid global spread.

The result: millions dead, economies shattered, governments destabilized, historic debt accumulation, and profound political shifts, including altered elections—all achieved without a single conventional weapon fired.

This fits unrestricted warfare perfectly: maximum disruption with minimal attribution.

“(Chi Haotian’s speech) has got a quote in here. ‘It’s indeed brutal to kill 1 or 200 million Americans, but that’s the only path that will secure a Chinese century in which the CCP leads the world.’” —Kevin Freeman

Internal infiltration amplifies the biological threat exponentially. Chinese national security and intelligence laws mandate that every Chinese citizen—students, businessmen, researchers, tourists, or immigrants—must cooperate with CCP objectives when called upon.

Coercion is enforced through family threats back home, constant surveillance, and a network of so-called “overseas police service centers” operating in foreign countries to monitor and discipline diaspora communities. These mechanisms turn ordinary nationals into potential assets for espionage, influence, or sabotage.

Open borders and lax vetting compound the danger. Reports indicate large numbers of Chinese nationals entering the U.S. under various guises, including an estimated significant contingent of trained operatives—some believed to be PLA special forces—positioned for contingency activation.

Hidden bioweapons labs discovered on U.S. soil (such as the one in Reedley, California) and ongoing concerns about embedded networks show how deeply these threats can penetrate.

Pandemic response is no longer just a public health issue—it is now inseparable from national security, border integrity, pharmaceutical independence, emergency governance, and resilience against information warfare.

The CCP exploits our openness to embed these capabilities, mirroring historical genocidal patterns while preparing for modern, non-kinetic dominance.

Attention: Modern war can now begin with a pathogen, spread through deliberate information control and lax borders, and culminate in political destabilization or worse—without any formal declaration of hostilities.

3. Financial, Political, and Institutional Enablers — and the Emerging Counter-Offensive

No adversary succeeds in unrestricted warfare without help from inside the target nation.

For over three decades, Wall Street, pension funds, multinational corporations, and political figures have—wittingly or unwittingly—funneled trillions in capital, technology, manufacturing capacity, and market access straight into the hands of the Chinese Communist Party.

This financial life-support system overcame the inherent inefficiencies and dysfunctionality of communism, allowing the CCP to modernize its military, expand its industrial base, and position itself as a near-peer rival.

The “hide and bide” strategy Deng Xiaoping articulated so clearly depended on exactly this Western underwriting. What looked like smart global business was, in reality, the single greatest enabler of the CCP’s rise.

“Through their actual hide and bide strategy (the CCP) has gotten us to help them overcome the inherent inefficiencies as well as dysfunctionality of communism, with underwriting mostly from American pension funds and other savings vectored there by Wall Street.” —Kevin Freeman

Politically, the pattern repeats: compromised or influenced figures—sometimes described in espionage terms as “controlled assets”—have pushed open-border policies, favorable trade deals, technology transfers, and lax oversight since the Nixon era.

Institutionally, Hollywood, academia, corporate boardrooms, and even our birthright citizenship rules have been exploited to build influence networks, shape narratives, create voting blocs, and erode national resolve.

“Every dollar that strengthens the Chinese Communist Party weakens America’s ability to resist it.” —Frank Gaffney

The result is a strategic dilemma: the very institutions entrusted with safeguarding American prosperity are, in many cases, financing an ideological adversary preparing for confrontation.

Capital allocation is no longer just an economic choice—it has become a national security decision.

Yet the tide is turning. A counter-offensive is underway, driven by high-impact, low-overhead organizations operating as “special forces in the war of ideas.” The Committee on the Present Danger: China (presentdangerchina.org) has led the charge to educate, expose, and defund CCP-linked investments while pushing policy changes to sever economic dependencies.

The Institute for the American Future (usfuture.org) sponsors multiple coalitions focused on restoring sovereignty, reforming the military to eliminate cultural Marxist influences, rebuilding credible deterrence, and waging the broader spiritual and ideological battle against authoritarian subversion.

These efforts draw inspiration from Reagan-era peace-through-strength principles: efficient, targeted action that punches far above its weight.

Victory in this domain isn't only military—it is economic, institutional, civic, and moral. It requires reclaiming control over supply chains, currency stability, border integrity, defense posture, and public awareness.

Financial advisors, business leaders, institutional stewards, and everyday citizens now carry frontline responsibility. Every investment decision, supply-chain choice, and policy advocacy moment either reinforces national resilience or accelerates strategic vulnerability.

Attention: Capital is a weapon—and responsible stewardship of capital has become a frontline duty in preserving American sovereignty and turning back the CCP's multi-decade campaign.
