

The Four Horsemen: What We Must Do

The United States stands at a pivotal moment—one shaped not merely by political disagreement, but by what many see as a civilizational crossroads. The nation faces a convergence of ideological, economic, and spiritual pressures that challenge its foundational principles of liberty, justice, and constitutional governance. These challenges span geopolitical competition, ideological infiltration, economic vulnerability, cultural fragmentation, and structural fiscal instability.

They do not operate in isolation; rather, they reinforce one another across military, economic, technological, spiritual, and institutional domains, creating cumulative risk to national sovereignty and long-term prosperity.

This Economic Battle Plan™ explores three central themes: the nature of the threats confronting American sovereignty, the cultural and strategic foundations necessary for resilience, and a 12-step structural reform framework aimed at restoring national strength. The goal is not alarmism, but clarity. Nations that fail to recognize converging risks, align around shared principles, and implement disciplined reforms rarely endure. The question is not whether America faces serious challenges, but whether it possesses the moral clarity, strategic discipline, and policy resolve required to confront them and preserve liberty for future generations.

In this briefing we will discuss the following:

- » The Civilizational Threat: The “Four Horsemen” and Ideological Infiltration
- » Cultural and Strategic Foundations: Knowing Ourselves and Naming the Enemy

YOUR MISSION: Equip yourself with the knowledge and actionable strategies to understand the threats facing America, reinforce the foundational principles required for resilience, and apply structural reforms that strengthen national sovereignty, economic stability, and personal security through informed decision-making.

WHY YOU SHOULD CARE

- » The forces reshaping America directly impact your freedoms, financial security, and community stability—these are not abstract debates, but realities affecting your daily life and future.
- » A nation confident in its principles and clear about its adversaries is far more resilient; cultural clarity and strategic awareness determine whether liberty endures or erodes.
- » Economic and structural reforms shape inflation, debt, growth, and market performance—understanding them equips you to protect your assets and influence the country's long-term prosperity.

1. The Civilizational Threat: The “Four Horsemen” and Ideological Infiltration

The modern strategic environment is no longer defined by isolated conflicts or temporary political disputes.

It is shaped by sustained, multi-domain competition across military, economic, technological, cultural, and spiritual spheres. What we are witnessing is not random turbulence—it is coordinated pressure.

Four interconnected forces—what we call the “Four Horsemen”—are driving this pressure:

- » Communist China: advancing under a doctrine of unrestricted warfare.
- » Sharia-based Islam: governance models seeking dominance through demographic concentration and legal transformation.
- » Globalists: technocratic institutions centralizing authority through environmental, health, and financial mandates.
- » Domestic Enablers: traitors, cowards, and fools who normalize and facilitate these shifts within academia, corporate leadership, media, and government for personal gain.

Communist China’s strategy is comprehensive. Economic leverage, technology acquisition, infrastructure penetration, and long-term geopolitical planning form part of a generational effort to supplant American leadership.

Simultaneously, Islamist political doctrine advances through concepts such as taqiya (strategic concealment until power is achieved) and Hijrah (migration to ultimately dominate host societies), creating enclaves where constitutional norms are weakened and challenged.

Global technocratic institutions—through regulatory harmonization and centralized mandates—erode sovereignty while promising efficiency, safety, or environmental salvation.

Yet none of this succeeds without internal cooperation—political actors, financial elites, and cultural influencers who enable or profit from the transformation.

“This is a war for the future of humanity. It is a civilizational war. It’s an economic war. Most of all, it’s a spiritual war.” –Kevin Freeman

These forces operate simultaneously.

- » Economic dependency strengthens geopolitical leverage.
- » Regulatory convergence weakens national autonomy.
- » Cultural fragmentation erodes unity.
- » Open systems are exploited by those who do not share their foundational commitments.

The result is cumulative destabilization—not in one dramatic event, but through steady structural erosion.

History warns that external pressure becomes truly dangerous when internal resolve weakens.

“A nation can survive its fools and even the ambitious. But it cannot survive treason from within. An enemy at the gates is less formidable. For he is known, and carries his banner openly, but the traitor moves amongst those within the gate freely, his sly whispers rustling through all the alleys, heard in the very halls of government itself. For the traitor appears not a traitor. He speaks in accents familiar to his victims, and he wears their face and their arguments. He appeals to the baseness that lies deep in the hearts of men. He rots the soul of a nation. He works secretly and unknown in the night to undermine the pillars of the city. He infects the body politic so that it can no longer resist. A murder is less to fear.” –Marcus Tullius Cicero (commonly attributed)

When domestic institutions legitimize adversarial ideologies, when economic systems fund strategic rivals, and when cultural confidence declines, the pillars of sovereignty begin to crack from the inside.

This is not merely a geopolitical contest. It is a contest over identity, governance, and the future of liberty itself.

Attention: The Four Horsemen represent coordinated ideological and geopolitical pressures reshaping sovereignty, markets, and culture. Recognizing the threat landscape is the first step toward reclaiming strategic control.

2. Cultural and Strategic Foundations: Knowing Ourselves and Naming the Enemy

A nation does not prevail merely by identifying external pressures—it prevails by remembering who it is.

Civilizations endure when they possess moral cohesion and strategic clarity. The American constitutional framework was designed for a self-governing people rooted in shared moral conviction. Without that foundation, institutions weaken, laws lose legitimacy, and unity fractures.

John Adams warned that the Constitution was made only for a “moral and religious people.”

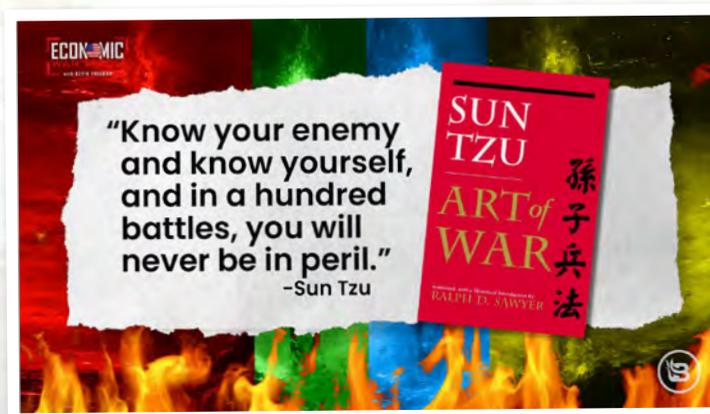

Benjamin Franklin, though often described as skeptical in personal belief, insisted on prayer at the Constitutional Convention because he understood that liberty without moral restraint cannot survive.

The First Great Awakening seeded the ideas of personal responsibility, equality under law, and rights derived not from government, but from God. That cultural foundation made constitutional government possible.

Returning to these roots allows us to recognize who we are as a nation and stand together in confidence as one nation under God.

However, strategic clarity requires not only knowing ourselves but naming the forces that seek to reshape or replace our foundational principles.

Strategic hesitation—whether from political correctness, fear of social backlash, or ideological confusion—creates paralysis.

Marxism must be identified as Marxism.

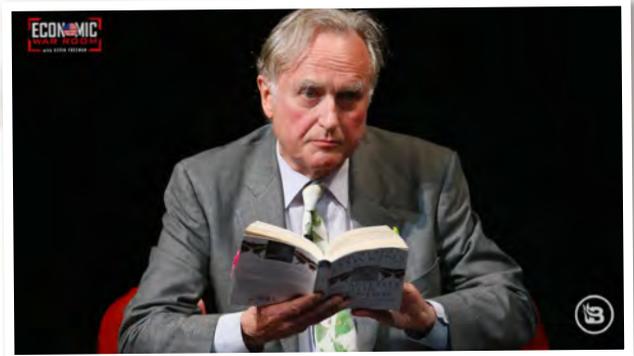

Sharia-based governance must be recognized as incompatible with constitutional law.

Technocratic globalism must be evaluated honestly when it centralizes power at the expense of sovereignty.

Euphemisms do not defend nations—clarity does.

Even secular thinkers have acknowledged the civilizational value of Christian moral foundations. Atheist biologist Richard Dawkins, while not a believer, publicly affirmed a preference for Christian civilization over Islamic governance.

“If I had to choose between Christianity and Islam, I’d choose Christianity every single time. It seems to me to be a fundamentally decent religion in a way that Islam is not.” –Richard Dawkins

Historian Tom Holland has similarly argued that the West’s defining achievements—rule of law, human rights, equality under law—are deeply rooted in its Christian moral inheritance.

Cultural Christianity, even acknowledged by non-believers, has shaped the moral architecture of Western liberty.

Without shared values, constitutional systems cannot sustain themselves. Without the courage to identify adversarial ideologies, policy becomes reactive and confused.

Moral confidence restores unity. Strategic honesty restores direction.

This is why a renewed Great Awakening—cultural, spiritual, and civic—is not merely a religious aspiration but a strategic necessity. When a nation remembers its principles and clearly identifies what threatens them, it regains cohesion and resolve.

Attention: A nation that forgets its identity—or refuses to name its adversaries—cannot sustain liberty. Cultural clarity and strategic honesty are the foundation upon which every structural reform must stand.

3. The 12-Step Action Plan: Structural, Economic, and Monetary Solutions

Once we recognize the threat landscape and reaffirm our foundations, the next step is disciplined reform. Sovereignty, growth, and monetary stability do not sustain themselves—they require structural correction across security, regulation, fiscal policy, and currency.

Step 1: A New Great Awakening

National renewal begins with moral renewal. A return to God—through repentance, prayer, and revitalized churches—forms the foundation for every other reform. Constitutional liberty presumes a morally grounded people capable of self-governance. Without spiritual strength, structural reform cannot endure.

“Step number one is an American awakening. Nearly all scholars agree that our great nation sprang forth from the seed sown in America’s first Great Awakening. The notions of individual liberty, personal responsibility, moral self-government, equality, and unity sprang from a church movement. Most importantly, the people understood deep within their souls that our rights come from God, not from government.” –Kevin Freeman

Step 2: Identify and Name the Enemy

Strategic clarity requires intellectual honesty. Marxism must be called Marxism. Sharia-based governance must be recognized as incompatible with constitutional law. Technocratic globalism must be evaluated for its impact on sovereignty. Euphemisms create paralysis; clarity enables action.

Step 3: Secure the Border and Enforce the Law

Border integrity restores legal order and national sovereignty. This includes stopping illegal entry, removing those who undermine constitutional governance, and supporting enforcement agencies such as ICE. A nation without borders cannot sustain liberty.

Step 4: Prohibit Sharia Governance

Parallel legal systems that conflict with constitutional protections cannot be tolerated. Sharia, by its very nature and especially when enforced as a governing system, violates fundamental American legal principles. Protecting equal justice under law requires rejecting incompatible legal frameworks.

Step 5: Exit and Defund Globalist Institutions

Institutions that undermine U.S. sovereignty or advance centralized global governance must be reassessed. Withdrawing from or defunding hostile or overreaching international bodies restores policy independence and strategic autonomy.

Step 6: Defund Communist China

Economic self-sabotage must end. Delisting China-linked and military-affiliated companies from U.S. exchanges prevents American capital from financing adversarial objectives. Financial discipline strengthens national security.

Step 7: Eliminate Waste, Fraud, and Abuse

Federal spending must be disciplined. Wasteful programs, fraudulent schemes, and bloated bureaucracies accelerate debt and weaken fiscal stability. Aggressive oversight and reform are essential to restore accountability.

Step 8: Dismantle the Administrative State

Excessive regulation suppresses economic growth and concentrates power in unelected bureaucracies. Rolling back regulatory overreach unlocks private-sector productivity and restores constitutional balance between branches of government.

Step 9: Maximize Economic Growth

Sustained growth is not optional—it is necessary. The private economy must expand faster than government spending. Tax reform, deregulation, and pro-growth policy provide the only viable path to outpacing debt expansion and restoring fiscal health.

Step 10: Restore Economic Justice for Younger Generations

Young Americans face affordability challenges that delay family formation and economic advancement. Structural reforms should improve earning power, savings opportunities, and entry points into the American Dream.

“We need to bring about economic justice and make certain our system still works for young people starting out.” –Kevin Freeman

Step 11: Issue 50-Year Gold-Backed Bonds

Debt sustainability demands innovation. Leveraging Fort Knox gold reserves to back long-term bonds could enhance investor confidence, stabilize borrowing costs, and reinforce trust in U.S. obligations.

Step 12: Implement State-Based Transactional Gold and Silver

Allowing gold and silver to function as transactional alternatives strengthens monetary resilience. Hard-asset options hedge inflation risk, reinforce confidence in the dollar, and provide practical financial protection for citizens.

These twelve steps form a coherent strategy. Security reforms restore order. Regulatory reforms unlock growth. Fiscal reforms restore discipline. Monetary reforms restore confidence. Together, they provide a path not just to survive present pressures, but to ensure America’s strength for generations to come.

 Attention: Sustainable liberty requires disciplined structural reform across security, regulation, growth, and monetary policy—only coordinated action can restore long-term national strength.
